		I have made concessions, wrote letters, sent cards.....and you have really not done anything to get our relationship back on track. You text and say you love us and miss us but your actions don't show that. It's like you are just saying words that you think you should say. So.... Call me in a couple weeks and lets talk. 8	Timestamp: 2/22/2014 19:16:27(UTC+0) From: +16019171506 From* To: +16019175492	Subject: No subject Body: No I didn't but I do a lot of things for my family that I don't have to do but I do because I love them and that is my way of showing them that. We need to talk on the phone before you come home. Not now but in a week or two. One night when you know I will be home and you have some down time. We don't communicate well over text which is one reason I think we have gotten to where we are now. We need to resolve this conflict between us one way or the other. I can't do this anymore. The past 9 months has really weighed on me and it has effected my other relationships, my work and my overall stability. I am very erratic and I have never been that way. It has made me become a person I don't like being so things have got to change. We either need to find a compromise and you be considerate and come back to being like you used to be and enjoying being with your family or we need to remove each other from our life. That would kill me but at least I would know what to expect with you instead of waiting every day you are home to come see me or eat with us or just call to talk like you used too. I would have expected this behavior from josh or alexa but never you and that is what had killed me about this. You were my sidekick. My buddy. I have made concessions, wrote letters, sent cards.....and you have really not done anything to get our relationship back on track. You text and say you love us and miss us but your actions don't show that. It's like you are just saying words that you think you should say. So.... Call me in a couple weeks and lets talk.
